International social science journal

Subject and author index

Vol. XXXI (1979)

Subjects

Adaptation to city and return home, 263–72
Administrative studies in Turkey, 305–27
Africa
  migration and socio-economic change in, 207–25
  new approach to social research in, 732–40 relations between mothers and children in rural, 486–91 textbooks and materials for, 10–20
Afro-Venezuelans, child socialization among, 470–6
Agrarian imbalances and modes of production, 226–36
Argentina, as case of sociology and reality, 86–97
Autonomization of organizational units in a planned economy, 619–32
Bipolarity, consequence for teaching and research, 59–69
Book publishing in Maharashtra, 328–40
Brazil, constitutional experiment in (Rio Grande do Sul 1891–1923), 169–74
Bureaucracies, public, and policy implementation, 633–45
  in Latin America, 661–81
Bureaucracy, shifting meanings of the term, 563–84
Canadian Inuit, value creation amongst, 393–403
Central America, training process and research in, 70–8
Childhood
  in a French village, 492–509
  in India, 444–56
Child socialization among Afro-Venezuelans, 470–6
  amongst Gypsies, 376–92
  habitat as a universe of, 457–69
  in Morocco, 429–43
Child-rearing, in a Colombian village, 404–14
City
  adaptation to, and return home, 263–72 structures at fringe of, 273–81
Collective consumption, migration and industrial economy, 282–303
Colombia, child-rearing in a village, 404–14
Computer technology, use in some developing countries, 513–28
Comte, Brazilian experiment based on philosophy of, 169–74
Cuba, social sciences in higher education in, 21–7
Data, protection and access to, 162–5
Data bases for research, 343–52
Dependency, consequence for teaching and research, 59–69
Developing countries, social science teaching in, 40–8
Economy, zero-growth, and public policy innovation, 696–707
Exchange process as approach to social research, 732–40
French village, childhood in, 492–509
Ghanaian army, as case of organizational instability, 606–18
Gypsy child, socialization of, 376–92
Habitat, as universe of child socialization, 457–69
Higher social-science education in U.S.S.R., 130–7
India
  articulations between village and town in, 237–49
  as context of interdisciplinary orientations, 114–22 childhood in, 444–56
Industrial economy, migration and collective consumption, 282–303
Industrial societies, habitat as universe of child socialization in, 457–69
Infant socialization, findings from North American research, 415–28
Information services and structure of social-science knowledge, 711–28
Interdependence, consequence for teaching and research, 59–69
Interdisciplinary orientations, constraints and contradictions, 114–22

Inter-organizational networks and social structures, 646–60
Inuit (Eskimo) society, creation of value in, 393–403
Ivory Coast, primary socio-economic data structure of, 141–61
Japan, language barriers in, 79–85
Knowledge structure in social science, and information services, 711–28
Korea (Republic of), adaptation to city and return home in, 263–72
Language barriers in Japan, 79–85
Latin America
  sociology and reality in, 86–97
  State bureaucracy in, 661–81
Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, social relations in semi-urban situation in, 250–62
Maharashtra, book publishing in, 328–40
Mariátegui, José Carlos (1895–1930), 175–81
Mass communication, incursion in child socialization in Morocco, 429–43
Migration and industrial economy and collective consumption, 282–303 and socio-economic change in Africa, 207–25
Modes of production and agrarian imbalances, 226–36
Morocco, traditional child socialization and incursion of mass media in, 429–43
Mothers and children, relations between in rural Africa, 486–91
North American research on infant socialization, findings, 415–28
Organization, technology as a form of, 585–605
Organizational instability, Ghanaian army as case of, 606–18
Organizational units, autonomization of, 619–32
Papua New Guinea, introducing social sciences to, 98–113
Poland, selection and training for research in, 49–58
Policy implementation, and public bureaucracies, 633–45
Political science, Yugoslav theory and practice, 123–9
Population census, as data base for research, 343–52
Public learning, capacity for, and public service organizations, 682–95
Public policy innovation, Scandinavian perspective, 696–707
Public service organizations, and capacity for public learning, 682–95
Regional culture, book publishing in, 328–40
Research, selection and training for, in Poland, 49–58
Rio Grande do Sul, constitution of (1891–1923), 169–74
Rokkan, Stein (1921–79), 731
Scandinavian perspective on public policy innovation, 696–707
Scientific identity versus student expectations in sociology, 28–39
Social Indicators reports (United States), 529–35
Social relations in a Libyan situation, 250–62
Social research, exchange process as approach to, 732–40
Social sciences
  in higher education, 21–7
  introduction in Papua New Guinea, 98–113 structure of knowledge in, and information services, 711–28
Socio-economic data structure, of Ivory Coast, 141–61
Sociology and reality in Latin America, 86–97
  cross-pressures on, 28–39
  in Spain, 355–9
Spain, sociology in, 355–9
State bureaucracy, critical approaches to the study of, 661–81
Student expectations in sociology, 28–39
Teaching in developing countries, 40–8
Technology as a form of organization, 585–605
Textbooks and materials for Africa, 10–20
Thai children, inculcation of values in, 477–85
Training process and research, in Central America, 70–8
Turkey
  administrative studies in, 305–27
  as case of teaching in developing countries, 40–8
  Chambers of Commerce in, 646–60
United States of America, Social Indicators reports, 529–35
U.S.S.R. higher social-science education in, 130–7
Value
  creation of, amongst Inuit (Eskimos), 393–403
  inculcation of, in Thai children, 477–85
Village and town, articulations between, in India, 237–49
Yugoslav theory and practice of political science, 123–9

Authors

ADEPOJU, Aderanti. Migration and socio-economic change in Africa, 207–25

AKIWOWO, Akinsola A. Textbooks and materials for Africa, 10–20

ALTBACH, Philip. Book publishing in a developing regional culture: the case of Maharashtra, India, 328–40

BARTRA, Roger. Modes of production and agrarian imbalances, 226–36

BERKMAN, Ümit. Administrative studies in Turkey: a general perspective, 305–27

BERTHIER, Jean-Charles. The socialization of the Gypsy child, 376–92

BRIGGS, Jean L. The creation of value in Canadian Inuit society, 393–403

BRITTAIN, J. M. Information services and the structure of knowledge in the social sciences, 711–28

CANGAH, Guy. National primary socio-economic data structures. IV: the Ivory Coast, 141–61

CARNEIRO, Paulo E. de BERRÊDO. An experiment in Brazil based on Comte's philosophy: the first Constitution of Rio Grande do Sul (1891–1923), 169–74

CASTRO, Ignacio Fernañdez de. Sociology in Spain today, 355–9

CHAUHAN, Brij Raj. Articulations between village and town in India, 237–49

DOBROV, Gennady M. Technology as a form of organization, 585–605

DUSSÁN DE REICHEL, Alicia. Child-rearing in a Colombian village, 404–14

ELEJABEITIA, Carmen de. Sociology in Spain today, 355–9

FUNG RIVERÓN, Thalía. Social sciences in higher education: the case of Cuba, 21–7

GANNOUS, Subhi M. Changing social relationships in a Libyan semi-urban situation, 250–62

HAKIM, Catherine. The population census and its by-products: data bases for research, 343–52

HARRIS, Adrienne E. Recent findings on infant socialization from North American research, 415–28

HEINTZ, Peter. Cross-pressures on sociology: scientific identity versus student expectations, 28–39

HEPER, Metin. Administrative studies in Turkey: a general perspective, 305–27

HUTCHFUL, Eboe. Organizational instability in African military forces: the case of the Ghanaian army, 606–18

KABBAJ, Mohammed Mostafa. Traditional child socialization and the incursion of mass communication in Morocco, 429–43

KAKAR, Sudhir. Childhood in India: traditional ideals and contemporary reality, 444–56

KIEŻUN, Witold. Autonomization of organizational units in a planned economy, 619–32

KIRAY, Mübeccel B. Teaching in developing countries: the case of Turkey, 40–8

KULPINSKA, Jolanta. Selection and training for research in Poland, 49–58

KYONG-DONG KIM. Adaptation to the city and return home in the Republic of Korea, 263–72

LEEMING, Frank. Structures at the fringe of the city, 273–81

LENGYEL, Peter. Stein Rokkan (1921–79), 731

LYONS, Gene M. Bipolarity, interdependence, dependency: their consequences for teaching and research, 59–69

MAYNTZ, Renate. Public bureaucracies and policy implementation, 633–45

MOCHMANN, Ekkehard. Data protection and access to social-science data, 162–5

MOLINA CHOCANO, Guillermo. The training process and research in Central America, 70–8

MONTIEL, Edgar. A Peruvian pioneer of social analysis: José Carlos Mariátegui (1895–1930), 175–81

MÜLLER, Paul J. Data protection and access to social-science data, 162–5

NILSEN, Svein Erik. The use of computer technology in some developing countries, 513–28
OBIKEZE, D. S. A new approach to social research in Africa: the exchange process, 732–40
OHTA, Hiroshi. Language barriers in Japan: an economist's view, 79–85
ÖNCÜ, Ayşe. Inter-organizational networks and social structures: Turkish chambers of industry, 646–60
ON-JOOK LEE. Adaptation to the city and return home in the Republic of Korea, 263–72
OSZLAK, Oscar. Critical approaches to the study of State bureaucracy: a Latin-American perspective, 661–81
PERRINJAQUET, Roger. The habitat as a universe of child socialization in industrial societies, 457–69
PETERSON, James L. The United States Social Indicators reports in critical perspective, 529–35
POLLAK-ELTZ, Angelina. Socialization of children among Afro-Venezuelans, 470–6
RIGGS, Fred. Shifting meanings of the term 'bureaucracy', 563–84
ROBERTS, Bryan R. Migration, the industrial economy and collective consumption, 282–303
RODRÍGUEZ BUSTAMANTE, Norberto. Sociology and reality in Latin America: the case of Argentina, 86–97
ROWLEY, Charles D. Introducing the social sciences to Papua New Guinea, 98–113
SCHÖN, Donald A. Public service organizations and the capacity for public learning, 682–95
SINGH, Yogendra. Constraints, contradictions and interdisciplinary orientations: the Indian context, 114–22
SOUSSAN, John. Structures at the fringe of the city, 273–81
ŠPADIJER, Balša. Political science—Yugoslav theory and practice, 123–9
SUVANNATHAT, Chancha. The inculcation of values in Thai children, 477–85
TARSCHYS, Daniel, Public policy innovation in a zero-growth economy: a Scandinavian perspective, 696–707
TRAORÉ, Aminata. Evolving relations between mothers and children in rural Africa, 486–91
VOLKOV, F. M. Higher social-science education in the U.S.S.R., 130–7
ZONABEND, Françoise. Childhood in a French village, 492–509

© Unesco 1979 Imprimerie des Presses Universitaires de France, Vendôme